“Finding adventure with the Open24”

With a month to go before the inaugural Open24, excitement is brewing. Open Adventure has already set a precedent this year with two 5 hour adventure races in some spectacular locations. James Thurlow the event director is confident that the Open24 is one better.

As well as the core stages of navigation by mountain bike and by foot – canoeing and swimming have also found there way on to the agenda for the 24 hours.

Keen not to give away too many surprises James has let on that water has a reoccurring theme throughout the event, “never wanting a competitor to do what I wouldn’t, I have had a great month exploring some amazing corners of this country with the event safety team – they should be ready for a breath taking experience”

“The race will be a very tactical, for those who are at the top of their game; their navigation will have to be spot on. Yet the race has also been designed as a journey that mortals can enjoy, with an opportunity to overnight camp and still enjoy the special stages by covering only 64km”

Closing date for entries is Friday July 15th 2005.
